Memorial planned for victims of Kenyon-Connell warehouse fire disaster

By Robin Jordan

On January 15, 1895, fire caused two warehouses where carloads of dynamite were stored to explode, killing 13 firefighters and 43 others in the worst fire disaster in Butte history.

Today, the only memorial standing at the site is a telephone pole spray-painted with the words, "No memory."

But, that is about to change.

A local non-profit group, Butte Historical Memorials, Inc. plans to build a memorial at the uptown fire station in honor of the firemen and citizens killed in the Kenyan-Connell warehouse fire disaster. On Sunday, Jan. 14, the group held a ceremony at the fire station to dedicate the site and unveil plans for the memorial.

The events of January 15, 1895 began at 9:55 p.m., when a policeman saw smoke coming from the warehouse district and set off alarm box 72 at Utah and Iron Streets. Firefighters loaded up the horse-drawn ladder truck and raced to the scene from the Central Station on Broadway to fight the fire at the Kenyon-Connell warehouse. At 10:08, the first explosion took place in the warehouse. As onlookers rushed in to look for survivors, there was a second explosion at the nearby Butte Hardware Co. warehouse.

The blasts were reported to have shattered windows all over Butte and were heard as far away as Willow Creek and Three Forks. Debris thrown from the blasts was found as far as 4 miles away in Rocker. Many bystanders were hurt or killed by flying shrapnel from the explosion.

Investigators later found the warehouse owners negligent for storing more than 100 lbs. of dynamite in violation of the law. It is believed that there may have been as much as two railroad carfuls of the explosives stored in the warehouses that night.

The disaster killed all but two members of the Butte Fire Department. The only survivors were John Flannery, whose job it was to man the hydrant a short distance away, and Dave Magee, who was blanketing the fire horses. Magee was badly injured when one of the horses, killed by the first blast, fell on him. A second horse, Jim, survived, and Magee credited the horses for saving his life by shielding him from the explosion.

Butte High School history teacher Chris Fisk said every year his students participate in a tour and memorial service at the site of the warehouse fire disaster. About eight or nine years ago, students came up with the idea of creating a permanent memorial to those who perished and each succeeding class has been contributing ideas to the project and collecting funds at various events. Fisk said once his adult-education history class heard about plans for a permanent memorial, "they picked up the banner and ran with it," and the non-profit Butte Historical Memorials, Inc. was formed.

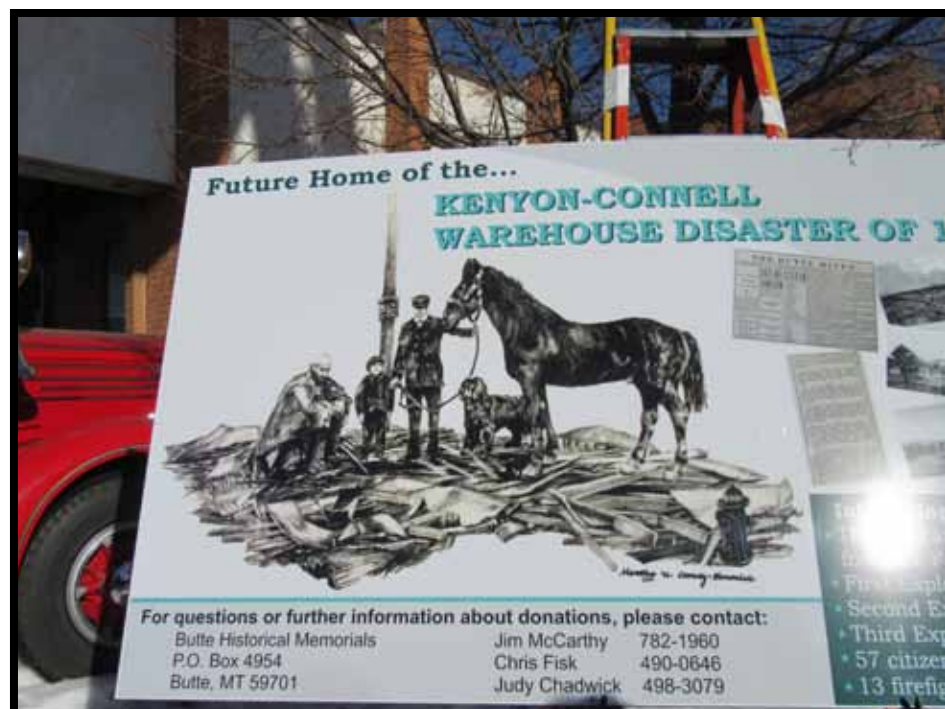

The Montana State Firemen's Association has also given its support to the project, Fisk said, which is fitting, because the organization was founded in response to the disaster to care for the widows and families of the firefighters who were killed.

Martha U. Cooney created the design for the memorial and Fisk said it incorporates all the ideas students have developed over the years.

Fisk said securing the land for the memorial is an important first step, but fundraising efforts will continue and the group has not yet decided on construction materials will be used, a final design or set a timetable for erecting the memorial.

"Butte people have a love of history. Putting up this memorial after all these years is just an example of Butte people doing what's right," he said. "We want to make sure that everything is done in the right way."

About fifty people gathered at Butte's uptown fire house for the dedication of land for a memorial to those killed in the 1895 Kenyon-Connell warehouse fire disaster on Sunday, Jan. 14. A design for the memorial by local artist Martha Cooney was unveiled at the ceremony. Photos by Robin Jordan

There is a way to truly honor Jim Younkin

Mr. Younkin, after all, refereed thousands upon thousands of games so that our kids could play and that we could enjoy watching them.

Rarely would you ever see Mr. Younkin when he wasn't in an official's uniform, whether it was basketball, volleyball, softball or baseball.

We can't have games without officials, yet game after game we sit there as these officials are verbally and personally attacked like they are running for office.

Mr. Younkin had no problem with people yelling at him. He actually seemed to enjoy it because it seemed almost impossible to erase the smile off Mr. Younkin's face.

Even when given the impossible task of officiating the Butte High-Butte Central basketball game, Mr. Younkin was all smiles as he called travel after travel.

And, boy did he make a lot of traveling calls. Mr. Younkin holds the unofficial world record for traveling calls.

The traveling taco on the school lunch menu was merely a taco until Mr. Younkin laid eyes on it.

Whether it was thick skin or just a terrific sense of humor, Mr. Younkin always rolled with the punches that came with officiating.

Once, when he was the home plate umpire at a high school softball game, the newspaper ran a photo of Mr. Younkin clearly making the wrong call on a play at the plate. Even a blind man could see he got it wrong.

Some officials would have threatened to sue the paper. Mr. Younkin just laughed. He had a blast as he was teased about the call for the rest of the season.

Not many people are like that, and that is why we have an official's shortage across the nation.

Why in the world would anybody want to officiate a game when your reward is a lifetime worth of verbal abuse over the course of two hours?

So taking it easy on the men and women who allow our schools to have games would be a fitting tribute to Mr. Younkin.

If you are already nice to officials, then another way to honor Mr. Younkin is to become an official yourself.

The personal attacks on officials might already be too much for the official pools to completely bounce back.

The official shortage is already so great that we have to play some high school football games on Thursday nights to help cover all the games. Could Tuesdays and Wednesday's be next?

It doesn't matter if you are officiating high school, middle school, grade school or Little League. It certainly didn't matter to Mr. Younkin. He refereed everything.

He was more than a ref when it came to the young kids. He also helped coach the kids who needed an extra hand.

If your job is flexible enough to do it, it is really easy to become an official. All you have to do is pay your yearly dues to the Montana Officials Association, study a little bit, pass an open-book test and buy a uniform.

And really, can you think of a better vantage point to watch a high school football game than as the back judge? You're also a long way from anybody who might be yelling at you, and the white cap takes most of the heat in a football game.

Granted, basketball is more difficult because the crowd is right on top of you, and not everyone has what it takes to put up with that.

A lot of people out there, however, could pull it off. Look at how many former players attend every game. If they could put up with screaming coaches, they certainly have what it takes to at least give refereeing a shot.

Plus, they have the advantage of knowing the game from a player's perspective.

Only one of about 9,000 former players end up officiating these days, and we need an infusion of youth more than ever. Many of our officials are in their fourth, fifth or even sixth decade of work.

If you can't officiate for whatever reason, you can still help out. How about ponying up the money for a young official to pay his or her dues?

How about talking a young athlete into officiating?

Nobody recruited and trained more young officials than Mr. Younkin. Conservatively speaking, I bet more than half of the Butte volleyball pool is officiating directly because of his smiling encouragement.

Now that Mr. Younkin is calling traveling in the great beyond, it is time to make sure his legacy is a lasting one.

Sports officials are disappearing faster than the bees and cacao plants. When they go away, the only basketball we'll have left is the KC League.

So it's time to honor Mr. Younkin and step up to do your part to make sure this doesn't happen, even if that means just keeping your mouth shut.

If you can't do that, then the least you can do is head over and paint Mr. Younkin's garage.

In his last HBO special, the great comedian George Carlin pointed out something that just about all of us say to people after they lose a loved one.

"If there's anything I can do, anything at all, please don't hesitate to ask," Carlin said.

Most of us have said something like that. While we are genuinely trying to help, most of the time these are just empty words because, really, there is rarely anything you could possibly do to help in that situation.

They are also easy words to say because we say them knowing we are never going to get called on them.

Well, Carlin wanted us to call out that bluff.

"You know what you tell a guy like that who wants to help?" Carlin said. "Oh, fine, why don't you come over this weekend, you can paint the garage."

Longtime Butte official Jim Younkin passed away last week, and in Mr. Younkin's case, there is something we really can do.

Actually, there are a couple of things to do, and the first one is really easy. At least it should be.

As a tribute to Mr. Younkin, let's all make a vow to be nice to officials for the rest of this sports season. Not forever. Just for this season.

Whether it's basketball, wrestling, basket weaving or whatever, let's break out the Golden Rule when it comes to sports officials.

Sure, you can yell and scream like usual after what you perceive to be a bad call. But, just for this short time, how about we lay off the personal attacks?

Shovel those walks, but be careful

By Robin Jordan

A video clip of a man slipping and sliding his way down an icy driveway before taking a nasty spill onto his snowy lawn made the rounds of news shows last week, causing a lot of chuckles and silly comments from news anchors and prompting plenty of wincing for viewers.

Apparently, the man's wife posted the video because she thought it was funny and we guess the man didn't suffer any major injury. Nonetheless, it should serve as a reminder that slipping and falling on icy sidewalks and driveways is no laughing matter. It's also a reminder that we all need to shovel our walkways and keep them safe, not only for ourselves, but for others who have to walk in the winter, including children on their way to school and mail carriers on their appointed rounds.

A couple of years ago, Butte-Silver Bow passed an ordinance requiring property owners to shovel their walks. While the ordinance carries the possibility of fines, so far the county is only issuing warnings to those who let the snow and ice build up on the sidewalks. Although the law provides exemptions for citizens over age 65 that meet certain poverty guidelines, most homeowners either have to shovel themselves or find someone else to do it for them. The ordinance applies to businesses as well as homeowners.

Ordinance or not, shoveling walks and putting down sand or ice melt on icy patches should be a no-brainer for everyone. It's a simple matter of public safety. Children on their way to school should not have to walk out in the street because of snow left piled on the sidewalk. Pedestrians should not have to risk serious injuries from ice left on sidewalks from repeated melting and freezing.

We know personally how hard it is to keep the walkways cleared when we have heavy snow events and fluctuating temperatures that turn the snow that melts during the daytime into a skating rink by nightfall. Taking care of the sidewalks can be a pain, but we're always reminded of how dangerous they can be for ourselves, our friends and our neighbors if we don't get out there and do our duty.

Even pets can be at risk of falling on slippery walkways and porches. Don't forget to look out for the areas in your yard where Fido could suffer a nasty fall.

Be careful while shoveling as well. Lifting heavy shovelfuls of snow can hurt your back, so try to shovel a little at a time rather than taking huge scoops. Take it easy and watch your heart rate. The shoveling can be good exercise, but remember that it is lifting, so watch your posture and bend your knees.

Let's all do our part to keep it a safer and healthier winter—and keep the slipping and sliding for the ski-hill or the skating rink, not the sidewalk.

Tax Reform Scorecard By George Waring

By George Waring

Dean Baker, an economist who devotes much time to debunking the anti-Social Security columns of the Washington Post's fear-mongering Robert J. Samuelson, surprised me before Christmas with his analysis of the Republican "tax reform." He entitled it, "The Trump Tax Cuts' Secret Santa." Believe it or not. Despite the act's devotion to make the rich richer, and even an aristocracy of inherited wealth, Baker found worthwhile changes that will be popular for traditional New Deal Democratic Party reform reasons.

- Doubling the Standard Deduction
- Limiting the Mortgage Interest Deduction
- Limiting the Deduction for Business Interest
- Capping the Deduction for CEO Pay at $1 Million
- Imposing a 21 Percent Penalty on CEO Pay at Non-Profits In Excess of $1 Million
- The 14 Percent Tax on College Endowments In Excess of $500,000 per Student
- Reducing the Size of the Orphan Drug Tax Credit from 50 Percent to 25 Percent

Baker's full analysis may be found at <http://cepr.net/blogs/beat-the-press/the-trump-tax-cuts-secret-santa>.

After listing and discussing these seven very positive changes made by the GOP in our federal tax code, Baker concludes: "The Tax Cuts and Jobs Act Is Still a Rip-off."

Yes, Baker finds seven positive items in the tax act, but damns it as "bad policy." It's bad policy because of its distributional impact. "The bulk of its tax cuts go to the richest people in the country, exactly the people who have been the big winners in the economy over the last four decades."

In addition, the bill also creates what Baker calls "a potpourri of potential loopholes by taxing income from different sources at different rates." Although the Republican TV ads tout the bill as simplifying taxation, Baker says this is "180 degrees at odds with the idea of simplification. In fact, it goes in the exact opposite direction of the 1986 tax reform, which tried as much as possible to tax income at the same rate regardless of the source." Baker reminds us that the 1986 bill "was passed with a huge bipartisan majority after years of public hearings and debate."

If you paid attention to the small cabal of tax reformers driving this act, in both houses, you'll remember they held no hearings, allowed no amendments or even debate. Senator John Tester earned national TV time when he held up his copy of the five hundred page plus bill and pointed to the page where someone, at the very last minute, had added a new section to the page margins in handwriting, containing indecipherable words.

Baker is hopeful that when the Democrats take power in 2018, they will use some of this act's items that "can provide a basis for constructive reform. These can be built upon at a time when we have a Congress interested in serious reform."

In sum, if the Democrats who take power in 2018 really are reform-minded Democrats, rather than what Noam Chomsky sees when he refers to the "two factions of our one American party." Given the Supreme Court's legalization of unlimited corporate contributions, Democrats who want to buy the required millions of dollars of TV ads do sell their souls.

So, what does Dean Baker really like? Doubling the Standard Deduction. This is Baker's "first and perhaps most important item." Why is this so great? The vast majority of taxpayers won't have to itemize their deductions. Americans spend over $27 billion a year, almost $200 per household, on fees to file taxes.

If you're like me, you rummage about, gather all relevant receipts, and then reorganize them into the IRS categories. The additions, the summaries, the categorization of charitable, medical, job-related, mortgage, etc. expenses that qualify as deductions from your income. Many hours wasted preparing and double-checking. As Baker writes, "Anything we can do to make this process simpler and cheaper is for the good."

When Democrats regain power, Baker advises them to go the Bernie Sanders route, adopt what many Democratic-Socialist influenced European countries do. Baker writes, "It has long been the practice that the European country's tax agency prepares people's returns for them. This is relatively easy if they are taking the standard deduction. People are sent the returns, along with a refund or invoice for additional payments. If they believe the form is mistaken, they compile their documents and make their case. Otherwise, they are done. Their taxes have been calculated for them and they can spend their time and money on better things."

Tim Dick files to run for District Court seat

Butte attorney Tim Dick took the first step in his run for the Second Judicial Court bench Thursday, as he filed his candidacy in the Secretary of State's office at the Capitol in Helena.

"The District Court Judge is in a unique position to serve families in the community, and that's something I'm passionate about," Dick said after filing to run for the position being vacated by Brad Newman.

Dick has worked extensively in civil litigation as well as criminal law, where he has represented hundreds of clients over nearly two decades of legal practice. Through the Family Drug Court, Dick has also worked in matters involving youth in need of care.

"Cases where we're helping kids who are victims of abuse and neglect because of drugs is the fastest growing area of concern for the District Court," Dick said.

Dick has been involved with the Family Drug Court since its inception in 2004, where he has represented children and families affected by drug use.

Butte-Silver Bow police detective Jerome McCarthy will serve as treasurer for the campaign.

Dick, 50, has been a private practice attorney for 19 years. He earned his bachelor's degree in business from Montana Tech and graduated from the University of Montana Law School in 1999. He has tried cases in State and Federal District Courts, and has argued cases before the Montana Supreme Court.

Dick is a member of the board of directors for the Lady of the Rockies, and also serves on the Mountain West Federal Credit Union board.

Baked Oatmeal

By Debbie Sorensen

When we lived in Carlsbad, New Mexico, January was a great time to have a winter scrapbooking retreat in the Guadalupe Mountains about 50 miles to the northwest of town.

Of course, winter on the perimeter of the Chihuahua Desert is different than in the Rocky Mountains. But given summer time weather extremes there, the buildings at the camp that we utilized were not too well suited for 20°- 40° temperatures.

The word would go out to dress warm, utilize cozy socks/long underwear and bring plenty of blankets. So generally, people fared ok. Plus, there were the super-planners in the group who brought along several extra blankets. The next issue of course, if you can imagine, was food.

The veteran camp caretakers knew how to create "happy campers" with the best food on the mountain! Depending on the weather, there would be at least one day that started off with baked oatmeal. We couldn't resist asking the cook for her recipe and she happily obliged. For smaller amounts in the following recipe, just divide the ingredient amounts by half. Refrigerate any left overs and warm on another day.

Baked Oatmeal

- |                             |                               |
|-----------------------------|-------------------------------|
| 12 c. quick-cooking oatmeal | 2 c. white sugar              |
| 2 c. packed brown sugar     | 4 tsps. salt                  |
| 2 tsps. baking powder       | 4 c. milk                     |
| 2 c. canola oil             | 8 eggs, lightly beaten        |
| additional milk             | cinnamon to taste, if desired |

In a large bowl, combine the first eight ingredients. Pour into two greased 13"x9" baking dishes. Bake, uncovered, at 350° for 30-35 minutes or until set. Serve with additional milk. Yield: 18 servings.

Questions to Ask Before Taking Social Security

Social Security can be an important part of your retirement income. So, before you start making decisions about your payments, you'll want to know what questions to ask.

Here are a few to consider:

How soon can I start collecting Social Security? You can begin receiving Social Security as early as age 62. However, your payments, as well as the survivor benefits payable to your spouse, will be significantly lower than if you wait until your full retirement age, which is likely to be between 66 and 67.

Social Security payments, you may choose to wait. On the other hand, if your health is questionable, or if you would rather retire than continue working, you might want to start taking payments earlier. And, of course, if you simply need the money to help support yourself, you may not be able to wait. Additionally, don't forget potential implications for your spouse. Since the survivor benefit is based on the size of your retirement benefit, it may make sense to delay and maximize your retirement benefit, which could help provide the maximum benefit for your surviving spouse.

benefits? Social Security benefits can be taxable at any age, whether you're employed or not. To understand your tax liability, consult with your tax advisor.

Can I claim Social Security benefits based on my spouse's earnings? Yes, you may be eligible for Social Security benefits based on your spouse's earnings and Social Security record. This benefit is available if your full retirement benefit is less than half of your spouse's full retirement benefit. The spousal benefit is only available if your spouse has already filed for benefits.

Can I wait until I'm past full retirement age to begin collecting payments? Yes. Your monthly benefits will continue to rise until you reach 70, at which point they will max out.

Which is better: taking smaller payments for more years, or larger payments for fewer years? There's no simple answer to this question. If you are in good health and have a family history of longevity, you may decide it's worth your while to wait as long as possible before collecting benefits. Also, if you enjoy working and don't immediately need the

If I'm still employed when I begin taking Social Security, will my monthly checks be reduced? If you're working, and you start collecting benefits before you reach full retirement age, your payments could be reduced if you earn more than the Social Security earnings limits, which are adjusted each year. Once you pass your full retirement age, though, you can earn as much as you like without having your payments reduced (although they could still be taxed).

Will I be taxed on my Social Security

These aren't all the questions you may need to ask about Social Security, but they can give you a good idea of what you should know before taking action. So, take your time, get the professional advice you need, and make the right choices. You've contributed to Social Security your entire working life, so you've earned the right to maximize your benefits.

Top Ten Benefits of Exercise

We hear that it is important to exercise, yet a majority of the people in our country still do not exercise regularly. In fact, only about twenty percent of adults get the recommended amount of exercise, which is 150 minutes per week. Some may find motivation in the benefits so let's look at the top ten.

1. You May Feel Happier. Exercise has been shown to improve mood and decrease depression. It produces changes in parts of the brain that regulate stress and anxiety.

2. Assist with Weight Loss. A healthy diet is only one aspect of weight management. Adding exercise maximizes weight loss, in addition to improving the percentage of muscle and decreasing the percentage of fat.

3. Builds Stronger Muscles and Bones. Along with adequate calcium and protein intake, exercise strengthens muscles, which in turns builds strong bones. This makes activities of daily living easier and decreases the chance of injury and osteoporosis as we age.

4. Increases Energy Levels. Regular exercise can increase energy, even in those with chronic fatigue and those suffering with serious illnesses.

5. Reduce the Risk of Chronic

Disease. As lack of exercise causes chronic disease, regular workout helps increase insulin sensitivity and decrease blood pressure. It reduces belly fat which decreases the chance of getting Type 2 Diabetes, heart disease and early death.

6. Improves Skin Health. You may notice if you go to the gym that regular participants look younger than their years. Now there is evidence that exercise provides antioxidant protection and promotes blood flow, protecting skin and delaying signs of aging.

7. Improves Brain Health and Memory. Exercise can improve brain function and protect memory and thinking skills. Increased heart rate improves blood flow to the brain and enhances the growth of brain cells. As we age, it can protect mental function.

8. Assists with Relaxation and Sleep. Any type of exercise can help you relax, go to sleep easier, improve sleep quality and feel more energized during the day.

9. It Can Reduce Chronic Pain. Historically, rest and inactivity were recommended to deal with chronic pain. More recent studies show an improvement in chronic pain with moderate exercise. Physical activity can improve pain tolerance and decrease pain perception.

10. Promotes a Better Sex Life. Exercise has been proven to boost sex drive in both men and women. Engaging in regular exercise can strengthen the cardiovascular system, improve blood circulation, tone muscles and enhance flexibility, all of which can improve your sex life.

If there was a pill that would provide all of these benefits, it would sell like crazy! These are really solid reasons to start a walking or other exercise program and work up to thirty minutes per day on most if not all days of the week. There is no other investment you can make that will reap these kinds of benefits.

Whether you already exercise regularly, are contemplating a work-out program or don't currently move too much, you are most likely motivated by at least a few of the above benefits. Focus on what you care about to provide the incentive you need to make exercise work for you. If you don't currently exercise, walk around the block as a first step. You can increase slowly from there. Exercise and improve your life!

WELL, WELL, WELL

Oscillocochinum

If you listen to the news, we are all doomed. The flu is out there, in 49 of the 50 states, and it's out to get us. It might scare us all, even those with flu vaccinations, because this strain of flu is new, mean and widespread. We need to take care, that's for sure, and if we are around those who are feeling "not so good, my body aches, my head hurts, my muscles are sore, and I'm queasy", you might want to take extra precaution, even more than washing your hands.

If you are the one feeling like "you might be coming down with something", you just want to lie on the couch, then it's not just the season for the flu, it's the season for Oscillocochinum.

Every year we write a column on this wonderful, impossible to pronounce vial of pills. If you want a remedy to ward off the flu, or prevent feeling any worse than you already do, you need to learn about Oscillo.

In our home, we all reach for Oscillo at the first sign of "something's not right with how I feel, and I've been exposed to a lot of germs". (And also when traveling in flu season). A natural, homeopathic remedy that has proven its ability to stop the advancement of flu, (in Europe, it's used to prevent flu, but the FDA in our country won't let the manufacturers make that claim here), Oscillo is easy to use, safe for everyone and affordable. It's now advertised on TV, encouraging viewers to avoid the flu naturally.

If you think that achy, feverish, sore throat, stuffy nose, yucky feeling might be the flu, or something related to it, get "those little vials of teeny white pills". It was rumored that the active ingredient in Oscillo was extract of chicken soup, and although we all laughed, thinking that couldn't be true, it's pretty close. Homeopathic preparation of liver and heart of the Muscovy duck (anas barbariae), is diluted 200 times to create this remedy that tastes like candy. It is safe for children, simple to administer and therefore recommended for older people or those with difficulty swallowing pills.

As with all homeopathic remedies, Oscillo dissolves under the tongue. Because it works on symptoms, (although if you believe the Europeans, it could be used for prevention if you think you have been exposed to the flu), three doses administered over 18 hours is usually sufficient. Formulated in France, it is the number one over-the-counter flu medicine there. In the more than 20 years it has been used in the US, no adverse reactions have been reported to the FDA, it does not interfere with the flu vaccination or other medication, and it is safe for pregnant and nursing mothers.

Clinical trials involving Oscillo are statistically impressive. Within 48 hours after onset of flu-like symptoms, chills, stiffness and fever were reduced by approximately 80 percent overall. Full recovery from flu symptoms within 48 hours was 66 greater for patients using Oscillo.

While this all may sound like an infomercial, it is still important to praise the use of homeopathy in general as an alternative to drugs in the treatment of certain conditions. For parents who are concerned about using drugs on small children, or for older patients who may be mixing and matching various medications, homeopathy offers a safe, effective and easy form of healing treatment. Pills dissolve under the tongue, they do not interfere with other medicines and they are subtle, with no side effects.

Homeopathy works on the principle that "like cures like", and therefore encourages the body's natural healing mechanisms to do their work. Remedies are made from plant, animal and minerals extracts and are diluted in varying degrees in order to avoid harmful reactions. Formulated in the 19th century by a German physician, Dr. Samuel Hahnemann, homeopathy proved itself during the European cholera outbreak in 1831. Since that time, homeopathy has become a strong medical model in Europe.

Here in the US, homeopathy has gained followers more slowly, but no less successfully. From remedies for teething and colic, to hemorrhoids, menopause and sleeplessness, homeopathy gets attention because it works safely, without compromising the basic healthy integrity of our bodies.

Not all homeopathy remedies are as difficult to pronounce as Oscillocochinum (o-sill-o-cox-see-num), but if you're looking for a safe alternative to drugs for cold and flu, give "Oscillo" a try. If customer and person reports are to be trusted, flu symptoms are either gone or reduced after three doses of the little pills.

Carousel Corner

Larry Hoffman

This issue of the Butte Weekly marks just two months for our volunteers and contractors to complete the work on our Carousel in time for a Saint Patrick's Day opening. Some days it's pretty encouraging, others not so much, but I can assure you all are working hard to meet that deadline.

Now we are ready to start talking to individuals with the interest and qualifications to become the manager of operations and make the operation a resounding success. If you think you might be THE ONE, drop off a resume at the Mall office, or mail one to P.O. Box 782, Butte, 59703.

8,600 square feet of concrete floor that has been under construction traffic for over two years is a challenging and time-consuming project to stain into colorful life, but the results are beautiful. At the same time, walls and trim are being painted to match, contrast, and complement the floor and each other.

Raven Hrysenko, an engineering student volunteer at Tech, was able to locate a wealth of assembly instructions and maintenance notes for the mechanism that have answered a lot of questions. Drive parts are being fabricated at Marathon Machine and Hawe Steel. All of the radiating sweeps, as well as the crankshafts that lift the horses up and down, have been installed, giving visitors an idea of the size of the machine.

Fixtures are starting to be set in the concession area and the seemingly endless wiring network is progressing. Butte Security is waiting for delivery of some sensors but should have us on-line this week.

Bi-weekly meetings are held with Butte-Silver Bow, H&H Construction, and Water and Environmental Technologies' engineers to coordinate the Stodden Park Improvement Project with our Carousel. The landscaping around our building will not be finished until well after opening, but will be as soon as the weather and coordinating projects permit.

The Gala committee is also spending hours to get everything ready for our Second Annual Carousel Gala, Saturday, January 27, at the Quality Inn (former War Bonnet). This year the event will have a circus theme. The room has a capacity of 380 people, it was sold out last year, so make your reservations soon. The Uptown Café will be providing the food and the Met Tavern the drinks, which will include the Purple Pony Carousel blend from Headframe Spirits.

Michele Brennick at 494-8207 is the lady with tickets at $50 per person. Individual, Reserved, and Premier tables are available. If you would like to donate items for the auctions, contact Sonya Rosenthal at 565-1985 Rosenthal.sonya@outlook.com.

Contributions to the project may be made by PayPal from our Facebook page, www.facebook.com/pages/Spirit-of-Columbia-Gardens-Carousel, or the website, <http://www.buttecarousel.com/>, by mail to P.O. Box 782, Butte, 59703, or in person at the Mall shop. We are a 501(c) 3 non-profit that also may qualify for employer matching donations.

If you have any comments or suggestions, or would like to volunteer to help, please let us know! Call the office at 494-7775, or stop by the site. We are not there all the time, but as much as we can!

"You are the ones who can say the word 'Solidarity' and call each other 'Brother and Sister'. The oppressor can claim nothing but his greed."

-Mother Jones, Legendary Labor Leader, school teacher, Knights of Labor, United Mine Workers, IWW co-founder

Wednesday, Jan 17:

"Radical" labor organizer Lucy Parsons leads hunger march in Chicago on this day. Her husband, who had been heavily involved in campaigning for the 8-hour day, was arrested, tried and executed on November 11, 1887, by the state of Illinois. In 1905 she participated in the founding of the Industrial Workers of the World (IWW). Her feminism, which analyzed women's oppression as a function of Capitalism, was founded on working class values. Later Lucy focused on the class struggles around poverty and unemployment, and she organized the Chicago Hunger Demonstrations. -1915
Right-Wing Segregationists assault Rev Martin Luther King, Jr., in Selma, Alabama, as he registers as the first black guest in a hotel built a century earlier with slave labor. -1965

Thursday, Jan 18:

U.S. Supreme Court (in order to protect company profits, low wages and deadly working conditions) rules in Moyer v. Peabody that a governor and officers of a state National Guard may imprison anyone (in the case at hand, striking miners in Colorado) without probable cause "in a time of insurrection" and deny the person the right of appeal. -1909

New York Times reports Wal-Mart Stores and Sams Clubs lock in their night shift workers with no key leaving them no chance of escape in case of emergencies. -2004

Friday, Jan 19:

Twenty strikers at the American Agricultural Chemical Co. in Roosevelt, N.J., were shot, two fatally, by factory guards in order to protect corporate profits, low wages and deadly working conditions. The strikers had stopped an incoming train in search of scabs when the guards opened fire. -1915

3,000 members of the Filipino Federation of Labor strike the plantations of Oahu, Hawaii. Their ranks swell to 8,300 as they are joined by members of the Japanese Federation of Labor. -1920

Saturday, Jan 20:

At the height of the Red Scare 4000 foreign-born Labor organizers and Union members are falsely accused of Communism and arrested for "radical" activities, over 500 of whom are later deported from the land of the free. -1920
Hitler enacts the "Act on the Regulation of National Labor," replacing all Union collective bargaining agreements. The act read, in part, "The leader of the plant makes the decisions for the employees and laborers in all matters concerning the enterprise... He is responsible for the well-being of the employees and laborers. They owe him faithfulness." Fascist governments are always anti-union and can be identified by their strong desire to destroy Democratic Unions. -1934

Sunday, Jan 21:

Over 750,000 steel workers walk out in 30 states, largest strike in U.S. history to that time. American Capitalists used WWII as an excuse to exploit workers and keep wages low even as profits were higher than ever. -1946

600 police, sent to protect corporate profits and low wages, attack and beat unarmed picketing longshoremen in Charleston, S.C. -2000

Monday, Jan 22

Indian field hands at San Juan Capistrano mission refused to work, engaging in what was probably the first farm worker strike in California. -1826
The United Mine Workers of America is founded in Columbus, Ohio, with the merger of the Knights of Labor Trade Assembly No. 135 and the National Progressive Miners Union.

Tuesday, Jan 23:

10,000 clothing workers strike in Rochester, N.Y., for the 8-hour day, and Union recognition. Mounted police charged the strikers and arrested picketers. Many were wounded over the course of the strike and one worker, 18-year-old Ida Breiman, was shot to death by a sweatshop contractor who was protecting profits, low wages and deadly working conditions. The strike was called off in April after manufacturers agreed not to discriminate against workers for joining a Union. -1913
Joe Hill's song "Mr. Block" first appeared in the Wobbly newspaper the "Industrial Worker". Created by Ernest Riebe (IWW) the cartoon character "Mr. Block" owns nothing, yet he speaks and thinks from the standpoint of the millionaire, he is the personification of all that a worker should not be. Today Mr. Block would be a proud and loud supporter of President Trump and FOX "news". -1913
(Chorus) Oh, Mr. Block, you were born by mistake, You take the cake. You make me ache. Tie a rock to your block and jump in the lake. Kindly do that for Liberty's sake.

Hunters meet to discuss FWP changes

By Paul Vang

With the 2017 hunting seasons basically over, a large group of local hunters gathered, last week, to learn what changes Montana Fish, Wildlife & Parks is planning. It was a wide-ranging discussion of various topics ranging from elk management to deer pee. Vanna Boccadori, the FWP big game biologist stationed in Butte, was the meeting's moderator, though there was a big complement of other biologists from the area, as well as game wardens, and Mark Deleray, the new Region 3 Supervisor (more on him below).

Deer pee? Because of concerns regarding chronic wasting disease, FWP banned the sale of ungulate urine scents. FWP is now proposing to modify the ban to allow scents if urine sources have been certified to be CWD-free, with the Archery Trade Association the certifying agency. Based on comments, there are still potential complex issues.

Elk shoulder seasons were a hot topic. FWP is studying options to evaluate the elk shoulder seasons, currently limited to 43 hunting districts, and to revisit the issue every three years. There was extensive discussion of the shoulder seasons, especially concerning District 215, the district closest to Butte that offers a shoulder season.

Proposed changes to the annual youth deer season drew discussion. Currently, it's a two-day season just before the general deer and elk season, and usually coincides with the annual Montana Education Association break. The proposal would make it a four-day season in years when the MEA break doesn't coincide with the two days before the general season. It would also increase the age for participating youth to age 17 instead of age 15. In a show of hands, the sentiment among attendees seemed to be in favor of not making any changes.

Boccadori presented proposals for District 340, or the Highlands District, to allow harvest of either brow-tined bulls or antlerless elk on a general license, which she felt would be more effective in managing elk populations. She indicated that the underlying reason for the change is, "I'm trying to maximize hunter opportunity and sustainable harvest."

Discussion on elk management returned repeatedly to the persisting dilemma of private landowners not allowing hunter access to their property, while often selling guided hunts for bull elk. This leads to increased pressure on neighboring public lands, resulting with elk migrating to private lands. At the same time, FWP is obligated to manage elk populations with goals set by the state legislature.

There was extensive discussion of mule deer management, especially a proposal to go to an either sex harvest in District 329, also known as the Horse Prairie District west of Dillon. Craig Fager, the biologist based in Dillon, defended the recommendations saying the deer are there and harvestable. Some people vigorously disagreed with that assessment.

Fager commented on some of the complexities of mule deer management, concluding, "There's a lot of moving parts in this."

There was extensive discussion of habitat issues. In many previously productive mule deer areas, there has been significant conifer encroachment, crowding out the brushy browse habitat favored by mule deer. There seemed to be general agreement that where elk populations are high, it has been at the expense of mule deer.

There are no planned changes to wolf hunting regulations. Following a grumble about "too many wolves," Boccadori responded, "You've got six months, dude. Get after it!"

For new Region 3 Supervisor, Mark Deleray, this round of winter meetings has been an opportunity to get to know biologists and game wardens in the Region, as well as to meet members of the public. He commented that the people at the Butte meeting seemed to be both well-informed and vocal in expressing opinions.

Deleray is a California native, and did graduate work at Montana State University. He spent the last 20 years as the Region 1 Fisheries Manager, based in Kalispell.

The entire proposed changes are available at the FWP website. FWP accepts public comments in person at public meetings, by mail, or online. The deadline for comments is 5 p.m., January 24, 2018. The FWP Commission will make final decisions on changes at its February 15, 2018 meeting.

Paul Vang's book, "Sweeter than Candy, A Hunter's Journal" is available at Books & Books, Cavanaugh's County Celtic, The Bookstore in Dillon, or online at <http://writingoutdoors.com>.

Dennis and Phyllis Washington Foundation increases grant for Folk Festival

The Dennis and Phyllis Washington Foundation in conjunction with Montana Resources has awarded a total of $600,000 to support the Montana Folk Festival over the next three years 2018, 2019 and 2020. Each year for the next three years, $100,000 will be awarded to the Montana Folk Festival which must be matched by donations from other Montana businesses.

"If the Montana Folk Festival organizers meet this challenge each year and raise a matching amount of $100,000," said Festival Director George Everett, "the Dennis and Phyllis Washington Foundation will then disperse another $100,000, making the amount possible $200,000 a year for the next three years."

Thanks in large part to this support, the 2018 Montana Folk Festival returns to Butte July 13-15. From the beginning in 2008, the Foundation has been a major contributor to the success of this festival which has become the largest free of admission summer event in Montana. This grant is offered as a challenge to Montana businesses to join in helping to make the festival a self-sustaining event that will continue to bring thousands of tourists to Butte and throughout Montana.

"From the very beginning in 2008, we have been impressed with the economic, social and cultural impact of The National Folk Festival and that positive impact has continued since 2011 with seven presentations of the Montana Folk Festival. We want to see this event continue for the long term and that is why we are doubling our support for this signature event. We also want to continue to support Butte and surrounding communities in an effort to help broaden the impact and reach of the festival into Montana's K-12 and post-secondary education systems in order to showcase the importance of the arts not only as an economic driver but also as an academic motivator that boosts achievement in our schools," said Mike Halligan, Executive Director of the Dennis and Phyllis Washington Foundation.

"We are now seeking corporate sponsorships to match this generous grant," said George Everett of the Montana Folk Festival Executive Committee. "Contributions made now will have an amplified impact thanks to this critical challenge," added Everett.

"The skill and hard work of our 355 employees helps make it possible for the Dennis and Phyllis Washington Foundation to be a major contributor to this Montana Folk Festival. We are a leader in our industry and we would like to Rolin Erickson, Montana Resources President. "We hope that corporate citizens throughout the region will see the benefits to their communities and help meet this challenge," he added.

Sponsorships that businesses consider to meet this challenge come with many benefits as well to ensure they receive the recognition for their support that they deserve. These are described in detail on the festival website at www.montanafolkfestival.com/folkFestival-forms-sponsor.php, or call 406-565-2249.
