Parking garage to begin charging June 1

By Robin Jordan

Contractors are finishing a few final touches on Butte's new parking garage and the county will start charging patrons for use on June 1, according to Karen Byrnes, Butte-Silver Bow's Community Development Director and head of the Urban Revitalization Agency.

At a meeting of the URA board last week, Byrnes said contractors are working through a "punch list" of tasks to be completed. Security cameras are being installed along with additional signage, such as payment signs and no smoking signs. Byrnes said area merchants have been using the garage as a "smoking hut," but it is a public building and smoking is not allowed.

Other items remaining include removing the bus shelter in front of the garage and reinstallation of a large sculpture the city-county purchased several years ago. The garage has a bus seating area on the Park Street side.

Byrnes said that contractors will install galvanized metal railing on the east and south ledges on the top level of the garage to prevent people from sitting on the ledges. She said a representative of the county's insurance provider recently did a walk-through of the garage and approved it without the railings, but the county decided to have them installed because of the number of citizen reports and concerns about the possibility of a child falling.

Cost to park in the garage will be $1 per hour on weekdays or $40 for a monthly pass. Parking will be free on weekends and weeknights.

Byrnes said the garage contractor, Jeff Kanning of Collaborative Design Architects, has come up with an idea to install a galvanized metal frame around the "enter" and "exit" signs on the front of the garage to minimize the rippled appearance of decorative tile. Kanning told the URA in February that the tiles do not appear flush because they had to be installed over the portion of the building where two parking levels come together.

Butte-Silver Bow Commissioner Cindi Shaw told the board she thought the contractor should offer the community "an olive branch" by paying for the additional framing.

Byrnes said she would pass along Shaw's suggestion to the architects. She said she didn't know what the change would cost but believed it would be minimal.

The $7.4 million parking garage was financed by bonding against Butte's new URA tax-financing district.

Butte's Ace Hardware Announces Plans for New $6.8 Million Store

Butte residents will soon have access to a brand-new Ace Hardware store featuring a larger selection of products and services, upgraded facilities, additional parking and a better overall shopping experience. Tom Shellenberg and Matt Dowdell, who have owned and operated the location since 2006, recently closed on a financing package to build a new 24,800-square-foot store at 2607 Harrison Ave., just north of the Holiday Inn Express. The new $6.8 million store will double the size of the current store at 1839 Harrison Ave., and will create up to 40 construction jobs and six new full-time-equivalent jobs. Local firms Pioneer Technical and Markovich Construction are managing the project, along with Billings-based HGFA Architects. Construction began in April and a grand reopening is planned for January 2019.

Financing for the new store was secured from First Interstate Bank and the federal New Markets Tax Credit (NMTC) Program, through MoFi (formerly Montana & Idaho Community Development Corporation). The NMTC Program helps incentivize and finance economic development projects in low-income communities. MoFi works with investors to turn the tax credits into cash, and then uses that cash to fund businesses, nonprofits and real estate developments. This is MoFi's first retail NMTC project in Butte.

Shellenberg and Dowdell, who also own Ace Hardware locations in Anaconda and Livingston, are excited about the expansion and the support it will offer to the growing community. They credit Butte High didn't win the Class AA State softball tournament over the weekend, and for that I take full responsibility.

I jinxed them. Apparently, that is one of the things I do best.

The night before the Bulldogs opened the tournament against Missoula Sentinel, I gave head coach Ryan Stosich the "kiss of death," as he departed following his appearance on the sports radio show KBOW Overtime.

I was hosting the show that night along with coach John Thatcher and High Ore Road superstar C.D. Holter, and Stosich was our guest. Stosich told me he would, as usual, give me a call following the first game, "win or lose."

My response was something like, "oh, you're going to win."

For a guy who has dedicated the first 44 years of his life following sports, you would think I would know better.

Thatcher and Stosich both immediately reacted like I just spit on them. They were looking for salt to throw over their shoulder or anything that might undo that curse.

Even though I believed in the Curse of the Bambino until the Red Sox won the World Series in 2004, I figured the Bulldogs would be safe of any accidental jinxes I could put on them.

The Bulldogs would beat Sentinel and then take on unbeaten Great Falls in the second round, I figured.

Butte High had the pitching, hitting and defense to make a deep run into Saturday of the state tournament in Helena.

The great philosopher Tedd

BUTTE SPORTS

It was I who gave the Bulldogs the 'kiss of death'

Stansisich once told me that you need two things to win a state title in any high school sport. No. 1, you have to be damn good. No. 2, you have to be damn lucky.

The Bulldogs had No. 1 going for them. Because of me, they did not have No. 2.

Nothing went right for the Bulldogs in the first game of the tournament. They "laid an egg," Stosich said before thanking me again for giving him the "kiss of death."

Stosich said he was just joking with me, but I know he believes deep down that I did, indeed, curse the Bulldogs.

In sports, we believe in superstitions. That's why every player — at least the ones who aren't clinically insane — make sure to avoid stepping on the baseline while entering the field of play.

That's why Wade Boggs ate chicken before every meal. That's why nobody sits by a pitcher when he's got a no-hitter past the fifth inning.

Superstitions are real because, well, people are crazy.

But, as Crash Davis so eloquently described to Annie Savoy 30 years ago, players have to respect the streak.

If a baseball player thinks he is winning because he's wearing women's underwear, Crash said, then he is.

That's why we could all relate to the scene on the movie 1996 movie "Celtic Pride" when Mike and Jimmy kicked their friend Chris out of the Boston Garden because he was the "bad luck guy."

That is why we wear lucky socks. Because they work.

I wore my lucky red socks for the first time to watch Game 4 of the 2004 American League Championship Series. Those socks helped spring Boston to overcome a 3-0 deficit to the Yankees.

I wore them for eight straight games without washing them — I may be crazy, but I'm not nuts — and the Red Sox won eight straight games to break the Curse.

I broke them out again when

Boston trailed 3-1 to the Indians in the 2007 ALCS. The Red Sox won the next seven games for yet another World Series title thanks to my stinky, lucky red socks.

I'm still waiting for the Red Sox to send me my rings.

So yes, I take full responsibility for jinxing the Butte High girls, and I offer a humble, heartfelt apology.

I don't expect them to forgive me.

I know my friend Mike Rapp still won't forgive me for jinxing him almost 23 years ago. I wrote about that day years ago when I worked at the daily newspaper, but the story is worth repeating.

On Aug. 5, 1995, I played the back nine with Mike when was in the zone at the Highland View Golf Course.

Mike shot a 31 on the front nine, and he started out the back with a birdie on No. 10 to move to 5 under par. The course record of 6 under on the par-70 course was set by Dave Cashell 12 years earlier.

A plaque recording the round hung on the wall in the clubhouse, and we gazed at that plaque in awe on a daily basis.

Cashell, by the way, was Mike's boss on the Butte Country Club grounds crew at the time. How cool would it be to break the record held by your boss?

Mike also birdied 13 and 14 to go to 7 under. Then ol' big mouth shot off.

Sometime while either walking to the 15th hole or while walking up the par 5, I said something along the line of, "Mike, you should bring that plaque and throw it to Dave tomorrow morning."

At the time, I thought I was going along with a fun conversation. To the rest of the group, I might as well have just said, "Hey, do you know you have got a perfect game going?"

They all acted like I just spit on them.

Mike followed by hitting his second shot into the water behind the green on the par-5 15th hole.

"Yes. The very next shot after you talked about shooting the course record," Mike said. "Not that I really remember."

I thought he was going to kill me. I'm actually surprised that he didn't send me to the clubhouse like Mike and Jimmy sent the "bad luck guy" out of the Garden.

Mike was playing so well, though, that he saved par despite taking the penalty stroke.

He also parred 16 and 17, so I was feeling pretty safe about my curse. He was 7 under and just need to par the last hole to break the record.

I felt really safe when Mike hit the green in regulation and had a makeable birdie putt.

The pin was in kind of a tricky spot, though, and Mike was overly aggressive with his putt for a 62. We were all speechless when he missed the next putt and settled for a tie at 64.

To this day, nobody has shot a 63 on that course, yet the group headed to the clubhouse like our puppy just died.

After Butte High lost out of the Class A State tournament with a win and two losses, I asked Mike if he still blames me for him hitting a 64 instead of a 63.

"Only every other day," he said.

It's good to see Mike is making progress after 23 years.

I'm pretty sure Mike, who is now the general manager/superintendent at Falcon Crest Golf Club near Boise, Idaho, was thinking about my jinx multiple times a day 10 years ago.

That gives me a little hope.

Maybe in time Stosich and the Bulldogs will start to forgive me for that kiss of death.

I'll check back in 2041.

the NMTC Program with allowing them to secure prime real estate for the new store.

"Without the subsidy provided by New Markets Tax Credits, we may have had to relocate outside of the heart of Butte," said Shellenberg. "We feel lucky to be able to take advantage of a program like this, which has allowed us to remain a central, vibrant part of the community we serve."

The new store will offer an expanded selection of hardware products, including paint, electrical, plumbing, fasteners, hand tools, power tools, pet, lawn and garden, housewares and cleaning products. All employees working more than 30 hours per week are eligible for benefits, including medical, retirement, paid time off and employee discounts.

"Since we purchased the three stores in 2006, our mission has been to have a positive impact on the lives of our employees, customers and community," said Dowdell. "By creating new jobs, modernizing our design and making a wider selection of products available to the people of Butte, the new store will do just that."

U.S. Sens. Steve Daines and Jon Tester have been supportive of the NMTC Program's ability to leverage federal dollars to support projects that are identified and completed at the local level. Both senators are excited to see the program's latest investment in Montana.

"Building an Ace Hardware store in Butte will help create good-paying jobs in the local community and give consumers access to supplies that were previously not available in the area," said Daines. "I am excited to support this project and look forward to seeing the benefit it brings to all the folks who call Butte home."

"Butte has always been a town where folks aren't afraid to work with their hands to get the job done," Tester said. "This major investment fits Butte like a glove and it will help meet the building and construction needs of the whole region. I will continue to strongly support New Market Tax Credits because they help Montanans create more good-paying jobs and increase investments in our communities."

"This is a great example of how a federal program like NMTC can infuse capital into the local retail sector and help increase the availability of affordable retail goods," said Dave Glaser, President of MoFi. "Butte's Ace Hardware is a win-win project for the people of Butte, and we're delighted to partner with First Interstate Bank and Tom and Matt to make this project a reality."

Flood Advisory

Montana Fish, Wildlife and Parks is advising all visitors to fishing access sites to use extreme caution during this period of high water and flooding. All sites on the Gallatin, Madison, Yellowstone, Jefferson, Ruby, Big Hole & Beaverhead Rivers are experiencing some level of flooding.

For your safety, do not drive or walk into any flooded areas. Be aware, some sites may have to be closed to all public use until water levels improve.

Alley Rally to feature multiple locations

As temperatures begin rise across Montana many of us are beginning to work on our lawns and on "spring cleaning" in our homes. With that in mind Butte-Silver Bow County will begin our annual Alley Rally program. Butte-Silver Bow County will be making several changes to benefit more of the community. These changes include multiple locations instead of one centralized location. The locations and dates of activity are listed below:

- June 1st and 2nd - Cinders Park, Old Glory, and Missoula Gulch
- June 8th and 9th - Hillcrest Area, Civic Center, and Race Track
- June 15th and 16th - Spolar, High Altitude Center, and Sesame Street
- June 22nd and 23rd - Cinders Park, Old Glory, and Missoula Gulch

Each location will be staffed by Butte-Silver Bow employee(s) to assist in placing items in the garbage containers. The City-County of Butte-Silver will also be offering large garbage containers to neighborhood cleanup efforts available by contacting John Moodry from the Community Enrichment Department at (406) 497-6525.

The City-County of Butte-Silver Bow would also like to remind the public that the landfill will be open 7 days a week from 8:00 am to 5:30 pm at the main site and 5:30 pm to 8:00 pm at the afterhours site. These hours will stay in effect until the end of October. As always, we remind the public that all loads going to the landfill are required to be covered.

For any additional questions of comments please contact John Moodry from the Community Enrichment Department at (406) 497-6525.

Burn Permits

You may purchase your $10.00 permit on line @ www.burn-permits.mt.gov or at the BSB Treasurer's Office between the hours of 8:00 a.m. to 5:00 p.m., Monday through Friday, unless there are fire restrictions in effect.

Please note: There are NO REFUNDS on burn permits.

For more information regarding the specific types of open burning and open burning regulations, please go to this website: <http://www.deq.mt.gov/airquality/airopenbrn.mcp> or call Fire Marshal Brian Doherty at (406) 497-6482.

Our Readers Write

To the Voters of Silver Bow County:

It is without reservations that I submit this letter of endorsement for Bob Whelan's candidacy for District Court Judge.

As a former juvenile probation officer serving our community for 28 years, I had the pleasure of working with six different District Court Judges. I also served in leadership capacities on the Montana Board of Crime Control and Juvenile Probation Association. These experiences allowed me to witness firsthand the qualities needed to serve in the capacity of District Court Judge. These qualities are: honesty, integrity, fairness, common sense, and self-discipline.

Bob possesses all of these qualities, and it is for this reason that I endorse his candidacy. Bob meets all the qualifications to run for this position, but it is his well-rounded legal experience and community involvement that set him apart. In addition, Bob is humble, a good listener, and cares about others.

Please join me in voting for Bob Whelan for District Court Judge on June 5th.

Sincerely, Marko Lucich

Reader supports Dick for District Judge

Over the past couple of months our community has had the opportunity to observe and evaluate the perspectives and agendas of the five candidates vying for the position of District Judge in Silver Bow County. As a lifelong resident of Butte, a mother of three teen boys and Licensed Clinical Social Worker that has worked with our community's most vulnerable populations for the past twenty two years I am compelled and honored to endorse Tim Dick as District Court Judge. Tim's honest, pragmatic, and hopeful insight into our community's problems and needs, and his willingness to examine the issues and listen closely to the public's questions and concerns, sets him far apart from his challengers.

Tim has extensive knowledge and experience in working with many of our community's vulnerable and victimized children and families. He has invested twenty years in advocating for children and adults that have been abused, neglected and exploited in our community. As a Guardian ad Litem for children in the foster care system, Tim fought for children's rights to be safe, healthy and loved. Tim has actively participated in the Family Drug Court Program in Silver Bow County since its beginning over 14 years ago. Tim's genuine care and commitment to the people of Butte as well as his dedication to honesty and justice makes him most qualified to represent Silver Bow County as District Court Judge.

It is my intention to vote for Tim Dick in the upcoming elections on June 5th and to spread word to others of his professional integrity, commitment and abilities.

MAKING SENSE OF INVESTING

Debbie McLarnon

What Should You Look for in an Annual Financial Review?

Given the complexities of the investment world, you might consider working with a financial professional to help you move toward your goals, such as a comfortable retirement. You'll want to establish good communication with whom-ever you choose, and you should meet in person at least once a year to discuss your situation. At these annual reviews, you'll want to cover a variety of topics, including these:

Your portfolio's progress – Obviously, you will want to discuss how well your investments are doing. Of course, you can follow their performance from month to month, or even day to day, by reviewing your investment statements and online information, but at your annual meeting, your financial professional can sum up the past year's results, highlight areas that have done well or lagged, and show you how closely your portfolio is tracking the results you need to achieve your long-term goals.

Your investment mix – Your mix of investments – stocks, bonds, government securities and so on – helps determine your success as an investor. But in looking at the various investments in your portfolio, you'll want to go beyond individual gains and losses to see if your overall mix is still appropriate for your needs. For example, is the ratio of stocks to bonds still suitable for your risk tolerance? Over time, and sometimes without you taking any action, this ratio can shift, as often happens when stocks appreciate so much that they now take up a larger percentage of your portfolio than you intended – with a correspondingly higher risk level. If these unexpected movements occur, your financial professional may recommend you rebalance your portfolio to align it more closely with your goals and risk tolerance.

Changes in your family situation – A lot can happen in a single year. You could have gotten married, divorced or remarried, added a child to your family or moved to a new, more expensive house – the list can go on and on. And some, if not all, of these moves could certainly involve your financial and investment pictures, so it's important to discuss them with your financial professional.

Changes in your goals – Since your last annual review, you may have decided to change some of your long-term goals. Perhaps you no longer want to retire early, or you've ruled out that vacation home. In any case, these choices may well affect your investment strategies, so it's wise to discuss them.

Changes in the investment environment – Generally speaking, it's a good idea to establish a long-term investment strategy based on your individual goals, risk tolerance and time horizon, and stick with this basic strategy regardless of the movements of the financial markets or changes in the economy. Still, this doesn't mean you should never adjust your portfolio in response to external forces. For instance, if interest rates were to rise steadily over a year's time, you might want to consider some changes to your fixed-income investments, such as bonds, whose value will be affected by rising rates. In any case, it's another thing to talk about during your annual review.

These aren't the only elements you may want to bring up in your yearly review with your financial professional – but they can prove to be quite helpful as you chart your course toward the future.

Don't forget to vote June 5

By Robin Jordan

Next Tuesday, June 5, is Montana's Primary Election and we hope everyone will go to the polls and vote.

Of course, we know many of our readers will have already cast their vote by absentee ballot by the time this newspaper hits the stands. In Butte-Silver Bow, about 9,600 ballots were sent out to absentee voters. If you got yours and haven't yet filled it out, remember to mail it right away. In Montana elections, the postmark date doesn't matter—ballots have to have reached the election officials' office by 8 p.m. on June 5.

You can drop your absentee ballot off at the Clerk and Recorder's office at the Courthouse before Election Day or bring it to Civic Center or the Courthouse from 7 a.m. to 8 p.m. on June 5 to make sure it is counted.

If you've already voted, thank you. If you haven't, please go to the polls on Tuesday and vote.

Historically, many Montanans don't bother to vote in Primary Elections in non-presidential years. We think they're making a huge mistake. This year in Montana, we're being asked to choose our parties' candidates for both the U.S. Senate and the U.S. House of Representatives. In Butte, we'll also be voting for candidates for several important local offices.

Five candidates are vying for the seat of District Court Judge #2, currently held by Brad Newman, who is not running for reelection and who will be leaving his seat to serve on the Montana Board of Pardons and Parole. Seven seats on the Butte-Silver Bow Council of Commissioners are up for election this year. There's also a three-way race for Justice of the Peace #1.

The local offices are non-partisan and the top two vote-getters in each Primary race will advance to the General Election Nov. 6.

The biggest excuses we hear for not voting are, "Politics are too nasty," and "Politics don't affect me."

Sure, the shout-show of political ads is as silly and nasty this year as it has ever been, but that's a poor reason not to exercise your right to vote. Do you have a home and pay property taxes? Do you have a child or grandchild in school? Do you like to recreate on public land? Are you a veteran or have a family member who is a veteran or who serves in the armed services? You need to vote.

A lot of issues that affect Montanans and those in Butte-Silver Bow are in the hands of those we elect to represent us. If you care about our community, our state and future generations, you need to vote for those who share your values and views and will lead us toward a better tomorrow. Do your part. Make sure you vote next Tuesday.

The Koch Brothers Presidency

By George Waring

Who would have thought it? The Koch Brothers sat out the Republican presidential primaries in 2016 and still got a president who is fulfilling their dream of a libertarian America.

According to The Intercept's Lee Fang and Nick Surgey, at the Koch Brothers annual January Rancho Mirage retreat for fellow billionaire (and some 700 other millionaire and wanna-be) donors to the Koch-created network of political, cultural and educational campaigns to restore 1920's America, Charles Koch stated: "We've made more progress in the last five years than I had in the last fifty. The capabilities we have now can take us to a whole new level."

After a happy review of what a Koch-influenced White House and Congress had delivered our oligarchy, dozens of Koch operatives from the network led sessions to explain how to move forward into the midterm elections. The Koch brothers announced that they intended to spend $400 million to preserve their Koch-reformed Republican majority in Congress and Koch-directed Republican state governments.

Beginning in February, Koch network groups were purchasing TV ads targeting Democratic lawmakers in key elections across the country. Their earliest ad began airing in Missouri, attacking Democratic Sen. Claire McCaskill, who is up for re-election this year. As the Lee Newspapers announced in mid-April, the Koch-funded Americans for Prosperity group in Montana begun running its first attack ads aimed at Senator Jon Tester.

According to the AFP Montana website, the state Koch outfit which claims "over 17,000 activists and hundreds of local donors," was "investing approximately $560,000 in TV and digital ads urging Jon Tester to support the Improving Choices in Health Care Coverage Act." This legislation is the Republican alternative to the Affordable Care Act. It's now in the Senate. It would enable the Kochs to help fulfill Trump's promise to end Obamacare.

According to The Intercept's report on the Koch meeting, memos distributed claimed that the Koch network's "research and outreach efforts across institutions" resulted in last year's "progress on many regulatory priorities" it had been "championing for years." One document highlighted the environmental victories, such as the EPA Clean Power Plan, "currently under the process of being formally repealed, and Trump's withdrawal from the Paris Climate Agreement."

On tax reform, attendees were told that the Koch network had "organized over 100 rallies in 36 states, contacted over 1.8 million activists, and knocked on over 33,000 doors." Koch groups had also "spent freely on digital and television advertisements, with $1.6 million in TV spots to support the legislation in Wisconsin alone." That media targeting was the Koch's reward for Paul Ryan, the House Speaker who was facing a popular Democrat in 2018.

The Intercept reported that within a week of the passage of tax reform, "Charles Koch and his wife donated $500,000 to Paul Ryan's joint fundraising leadership PAC."

Lee Fang and Nick Surgey noted that the Koch Brothers' dissatisfaction with Trump during the primary season even included their "flirtations with replacing him as the nominee with Ryan at the Republican National Convention."

However, Trump's selection of long-time Koch favorite Mike Pence (the brothers backed him for president in the 2012 primaries) as VP was a friendly message. Fang and Surgey write, "the Koch brothers have enjoyed incredible access with Trump's administration. The president's lawyer, Don McGahn; the president's chief liaison to Congress, Marc Short; and the president's counselor, Kellyanne Conway all previously worked for the Koch network before taking their current positions in the White House."

Moreover, the reporters' survey of ethics forms revealed that Trump appointed "officials across the government, including at the Environmental Protection Agency and the Department of Energy, who previously served at Koch think tanks or other Koch groups."

What is the Koch network? Jane Mayer's 2017 book, "Dark Money," is the best source for getting the overall picture. She entitled chapter five, "The Kochtopus: Free Market Machine."

It appears to have been Lewis Powell's memorandum of 1971, "Attack on American Free Enterprise System," that spurred Charles Koch to follow the example of fellow billionaire Richard Mellon Scaife. Scaife created the Heritage Foundation in 1975. Then Koch created his Cato Institute, "the nation's first libertarian think tank." Koch claimed tax deductions of $30 million in its first three years. If you watch C-SPAN, you'll be subjected to events staged at these right-wing propaganda mills regularly.

Then Charles Koch created "The Americans for Prosperity Foundation," a tax dodge enabling his "dark money" conquests.

Carousel Corner

By Larry Hoffman

I'm not completely sure, but I think this marks three years of the Carousel Corner column. We are very grateful to the Butte Weekly for the venue to keep the community informed about the project.

Another week of hanging horses on the carousel itself. Ed Curran and Don Sundberg have led the effort, with several volunteers at different times to manhandle the ponies from their stands to a table to be fitted with a lifting rod, stirrups, and a brass sleeve, then on to their designated place on the platform. Each one requires two to three hours and usually four sets of arms.

Only seven steeds are still waiting for their place in the starting lineup. Then the two chariots will be set in place. Once everything is on the platform, we've talked about having a flashmob gathering to fill the carousel to capacity and load-test the drive mechanism. So far the motor and controller are not even getting warm, but we are still a long way from having a full load. In addition to approximately 7400 pounds of horses and two chariots, an adult carousel load, like at a reunion or wedding reception, could be that much again.

The original drive was an old truck axle with a 1930's motor and a hand clutch, all of dubious reliability. The new one is a heavy-duty mixer gearbox with a variable frequency drive (VFD) that allows an infinitely variable speed range. The question is whether it has enough horsepower to operate the carousel. If it doesn't, it's not a complicated or expensive change to increase the capability. The merry-go-round at the carnival last week at the Civic Center was the same size and manufacturer (Herschell) as ours, but newer. It was interesting to compare details.

Northwestern Energy completed the gas line to the pool and our Carousel, so the entrance to Stodden Park is once again relatively unobstructed from Sampson Street.

Our Facebook page posts are getting thousands of views, hundreds of Likes, and dozens of shares, as well as connecting people who have not been in contact for years but share a love of Columbia Gardens.

Will the Carousel be open on our target date of June 20th? Stayed tuned.

Contributions to the project may be made by PayPal from our Facebook page, www.facebook.com/pages/Spirit-of-Columbia-Gardens-Carousel, or the website, <http://www.buttecarousel.com/>, by mail to P.O. Box 782, Butte, 59703, or in person at the Mall shop. We are a 501(c)3 non-profit that also may qualify for employer matching donations.

'Dimple Knees' scandal subject of Archives presentation

The Butte-Silver Bow Public Archives will continue its Brown Bag Lunch series on Wednesday, June 13. John Kuglin, a retired Montana Associated Press bureau chief, will speak about his new book, "Montana's Dimple Knees Sex Scandal: 1960s Prostitution, Payoffs and Politicians."

The book is mostly about Beverly Snodgrass, who owned two Butte houses of prostitution in the 1960s. Snodgrass made a lot of poor choices. While running her brothels she fell deeply in love with a crooked politician, whom she nicknamed "Dimple Knees." When corrupt cops in uniform came to her businesses, it usually wasn't to serve and protect but rather to collect payoffs. Things were never the same in Butte after Beverly Snodgrass told her story to a reporter for the Great Falls Tribune.

The Importance of Forgiveness

Do you or someone you know have a grudge you are holding? It can be against a family member, a loved one, a partner, long-time friend or anyone else. Sometimes people continue in relationships while letting the bitterness be a wedge between them that keeps them from being close or interferes in their relationship on a regular basis. Sometimes the parties do not speak to each other at all and these differences go on for many years.

The question is whether this a healthy or productive way to handle a misunderstanding. It is not healthy, but it can be considered a weakness to apologize, or just too difficult let go of hurt feelings. Or one may feel being the first to make peace makes them the loser in the disagreement.

We may feel that we are punishing or hurting the other party by holding back our forgiveness. The reality is that we are the ones who are being hurt when we refuse to forgive. The Stanford Forgiveness Project illustrated that learning to forgive lessens the amount of hurt, anger, stress and depression that people experience in their lives.

When we do forgive, we no longer feel resentment against someone or something. It is a wonderful feeling to know you can regain your sense of self. You can wake up each day feeling lighter and freer knowing that burden has been lifted from you. People who forgive become more hopeful and compassionate and develop better conflict-resolving skills. Forgiveness does not mean that you will forget what happened. You continue to learn from experiences, while moving on from them. It doesn't mean you're weak. You are now operating from a position of strength and have taken away the other person's ability to continue to hurt you. It doesn't mean that you don't feel angry when someone is unkind, inconsiderate or selfish, or that you haven't been hurt. You cannot change what happened, but you don't have to suffer forever either.

Part of the process of forgiveness is to acknowledge how you feel as well as who is responsible for the pain. Think before you speak and be sure you are expressing your emotions in healthy ways. Release any expectations you may have of an apology from the other person or a righting of the wrong they have done. Set boundaries to protect yourself and evaluate your relationship so you are not expecting what that person cannot give.

When we change our expectations of others, we may have to find alternative ways to meet our needs. Think of this as an opportunity rather than a challenge. It is possible to have an attachment to a behavior we expect from our loved ones while realistically we are unable to change them. If we give up that attachment, we can adjust our own behaviors accordingly.

There is also the process of forgiveness of self. Some find this to be the most difficult process of all. We may eventually find that we can forgive the shortcomings of others but hold ourselves to a higher standard. We cannot change the past, but we can change our attitude and behavior in the future. Use your experiences to know what changes you can make and then forgive yourself for your past wrongdoings.

As part of the process of forgiving, you may be able to look at your own life in a new light. Reframe events that make you feel down and put them in the perspective of helping you become the person you are today. Without resentments toward yourself or others you will be able to look forward with more hope and energy and make the most of your future!

What's Cooking

Rhubarb abounds By Debbie Sorensen

I've been delighted to see so many rhubarb recipes lately. Reading a newspaper, magazine or blog that highlights this plant, has added to my culinary zeal for using this cool-weather plant. I'm so happy to head to the flourishing mass of green leaves in the back yard and bring the stalks right into the kitchen for immediate use. It doesn't get any fresher than that!

Granted, by the end of summer, I may be singing a different tune. In the meantime, it's "come and get it." This recipe is from, where else? The University of Alaska "Rhubarb Recipes." Cooperative Extension Service Publication No. 64. A heads up for next week: Start thinking Italian. You just never know what may surprise you.

Rhubarb Cake

Cream together:

½ c. butter 1 c. brown sugar ½ c. white sugar 1 egg

Add:

2 c. sifted flour 1 tsp. soda ½ tsp. salt 1 tsp. vanilla
1 c. sour milk or buttermilk 1 ½ c. chopped raw rhubarb

Top with mixture of:

½ c. white sugar 1 tsp. cinnamon ½ c. chopped nuts

Bake in greased and floured 9inch x 13 inch pan, at 325° for 50 minutes.

✓ VOTE Eric MANKINS COMMISSIONER DISTRICT 9

- ✓ Eric Mankins has a love for his hometown, a passion for impacting youth, and a desire to give back to the community that has given him so much.
- ✓ A Butte native, Eric is one of three children born to Larry and Sharon Mankins. He has worked with the youth of Butte for over 13 years in various aspects of counseling, mentoring, coaching, and instruction. Eric holds an Elementary Education degree, with minors in Special Education and Reading, as well as a Master's Degree in Counseling. As a counselor at Butte High School, Eric impacts the youth of Butte on a daily basis and helps shape their lives by understanding their needs, talents and desires.
- ✓ Eric believes in the power of education and knows how education can change lives. He wants to use his educational background to ensure all generations of Butte residents have the opportunity to live, work, and raise their families in their hometown. Eric believes that we have an educational gem and economic driver in our local university, Montana Tech. He wants to strengthen the relationship between Montana Tech and the community including working more closely to help Montana Tech flourish. He knows the capacity of the faculty, staff and students and wants to help the university increase enrollment which in turn will strength the economy of Butte.

- ✓ He is passionate about Butte and its culture and wants to play a key role in setting the strategic vision for the Richest Hill on Earth. He has served the community through various forms of volunteer work but favors those closely related to youth development. He started the Excel Club where he currently serves as class advisor at Butte High School and coaches athletics for both boys and girls. Eric values hard work and believes in building lasting relationships through a good work ethic, and the earnest care of others. He believes in collaboration, has helped coordinate and manage many youth athletic events bringing added revenue to the Butte community. His ability to gather a variety of perspectives and communicate effectively were key factors in the integrity and success of these events.
- ✓ Eric wants to hold the District 9 seat on the Butte-Silver Bow Council of Commissioners in order to directly apply his belief in education and to work more closely with the community to foster a better community to live, work, and raise his children. If elected, he will work to recognize and preserve the unique character of both the historical feel and innovative neighborhoods, develop the recreational value in both urban and rural settings, and work with the residential, industrial, and commercial property owners to continue to serve them for the betterment of Butte. He wants to improve the quality of life for those who work and live in Butte and ensure that local government is fiscally responsible.
- ✓ Eric and his wife Jennifer Mankins, a Montana Tech alumna and nurse at St. James Healthcare, are the parents of a new baby boy, Duke Allen Mankins.

'100 Butte Objects' exhibit opens at Archives

The Butte-Silver Bow Public Archives is pleased to announce the opening of an exhibit featuring 100 Butte Objects. This exhibit uses 100 iconic objects to illustrate Butte's fascinating history.

You may remember riding the roller coaster at the Columbia Gardens, ordering a fresh-made root beer served in a frosty mug at the A&W, or hiking in Thompson Park. Most of these objects are unique to Butte. Others are distinctly western, like the "M" on Big Butte. Some places have been abandoned or forgotten, but still have a presence in Butte, like the old Hansen Packing building. Some things we see every day, but somehow we don't notice them, like the black slag wall on the lower west end of Montana Street. . These objects inform on our mining and labor heritage, and where that heritage places us in the 21st century of environmental restoration and historic preservation.

The exhibit will run through September. The Archives is located at 17 West Quartz Street in Butte. Regular hours are Monday through Friday, 9:00 a.m. - 5:00 p.m. and first Saturday of every month in the summer, 9:00 - 1:00 p.m. Admission is free. For more information, please call the archives at 782-3280.

The Great Outdoors

Turkey hunting expedition successful

By Paul Vang

It was a wildlife morning. The Montana spring turkey season opened on April 14, though I never got out until the first week of May, when I had one of those rare convergences of a day free of commitments and with nice weather.

I went to a walk-in area along a brushy river bottom, and above the river bottom, a grassy strip is next to an alfalfa field. Driving in to an access point I spotted several turkeys feeding in the alfalfa, though sneaking up on them didn't seem possible.

I walked in, set out my hen decoy and did some calling and sat down to wait for some sort of response. I had responses, if not what I was hoping for.

A pair of sandhill cranes flew into the field and started feeding, frequently stopping to talk and dance in a sandhill crane ballet. It's a good thing that sandhill cranes speak loudly, as the river bottom was a cacophony of sound. There was the murmur of the fast-moving river and calls of ducks and geese, songbirds, the occasional raspy call of a pheasant announcing his desire for love and companionship, and numbers of crows calling each other names.

I was surprised to see a wild turkey fly from somewhere to perch in a tall cottonwood tree about 150 yards away. I tried to send mental telepathy messages to come on down and see me. The bird eventually flew down but went far away from my spot. I moved down the strip a short distance and spotted a rooster pheasant crossing the grass.

A coyote trotted across the grass and disappeared into the alfalfa, presumably in search of edible critters, most likely voles, though coyotes aren't too fussy about such things. The highlight of the morning was watching a cow moose walk up from the bottoms and cross the grass, then stepping over the barbed wire fence to go into the alfalfa. A moment later, a bull moose followed, and then a third moose, a yearling calf, joined the adults in the field. The moose slowly worked their way through the field in my direction, getting to within about 50 yards of me, when the cow probably caught me moving a bit, and she stood still, giving me the evil eye. I took a photo of the lady, and the flash of my camera convinced Mama that I was up to no good and she left the field, followed by the calf, with the bull moose bringing up the rear. A few minutes later I heard them splashing through water, as they crossed the river.

As for the turkeys, they never responded to my call and presumably disappeared into the bottoms. It was approaching noon and I decided I was wasting time and I called it a morning.

As I drove out I looked down across the field. I spotted a turkey nosing around in the grass, just about where I was 30 minutes earlier. Patience is a virtue in this game.

While frustrating, this was still one of the more rewarding mornings I've ever spent in the outdoors, and I was still bubbling when I came home and told my wife about my day.

A couple weeks later, just before season's end, I had another free day with nice weather and returned to my spot.

This time, when nothing happened, I lay back in the grass and took a nap, enjoying warm sunshine and sounds of nature, and, happily, no ticks. A different sound interrupted my nap. I opened my eyes and cautiously looked around, surprised to see a turkey acting amorously towards my decoy. I sat up, fired my gun, and my hunt was over, unexpectedly successful.

On my way home I reflected on some 32 years, off and on, of seemingly quixotic turkey hunts filled with failure and frustration. A partner on many of those outings was an old friend, the late Rev. Merv Olson, pastor at Gold Hill Lutheran Church in Butte during the 1990s.

This one's for you, Merv.

"The test of our progress is not whether we add more to the abundance of those who have much; it is whether we provide enough for those who have too little".
 -President Franklin D. Roosevelt, Progressive New Deal Democrat

Wednesday, May 30:

13 black men burned at the stake, and 17 black men, 2 white men, and 2 white women hanged, for their roles in planning a slave revolt in New York City. -1741

In what would become known as the Memorial Day Massacre, police (protecting company profits) open fire on unarmed striking steelworkers, their families, and supporters who were marching to the Republic Steel plant in South Chicago to set up a picket line. The Police killed 10 people and pursued those fleeing the attack, wounding over 160. No one was ever prosecuted. -1937

Thursday, May 31:

A car in which feminist and political activist Emma Goldman was riding is struck by a freight train in Spokane, Washington. Emma is thrown from the car and badly bruised. The plucky anarchist continues her speaking engagements, in Butte, Montana, Bismarck and Fargo, North Dakota. -1910

The infamous trial of Sacco and Vanzetti, in which the 2 pro-labor immigrant workers were railroaded for a crime they did not commit, began in Dedham, Massachusetts. Judge Webster Thayer's anti-worker and anti-immigrant opening remarks set the tone for the trial. -1921

Friday, June 1:

The Ladies Federal Labor Union Number 2703, based in Illinois, was granted a charter from the AFL. They championed suffrage, health, housing and child labor reform. -1888

U.S. troops arrived in Colorado to reclaim coal mines from striking miners, after the Colorado National Guard (who were sent to protect profits) massacred 19 unarmed strikers. 2 women and 11 children. -1914

Farm workers under the banner of the new United Farm Workers Organizing Committee strike at Texas's La Casita Farms; demand $1.25 as a minimum hourly wage - 1966

American icon, Deaf-blind, author, political activist, proud IWW member, Helen Keller dies. She campaigned for women's suffrage, labor rights, social justice and Democratic Socialism. -1968

Saturday, June 2:

26 journeymen printers in Philadelphia stage the trade's first strike in America over wages: a cut in their $6 weekly pay. -1786.

The IWW's Mesabi Iron Range strike began in Minnesota. The strike was violently suppressed by police and vigilantes, with numerous strikers being beaten and jailed. The struggle was a precursor to the infamous labor deportations, in Bisbee, Arizona in July, 1917, in which 1,300 Wobblies, their supporters, and even innocent bystanders, were rounded up, forced into cattle cars, and dumped in the desert after 16 hours without food or water, in the land of the free. -1916

Sunday, June 3:

Int'l Ladies Garment Workers Union founded. -1900

A federal child labor law that had been enacted in 1916 was declared unconstitutional. A new version was enacted on February 24, 1919, but was also later declared unconstitutional. The Capitalist found child labor to be highly profitable in turn it was not until the 1930s that child labor provisions were enacted. -1918

Monday, June 4:

Massachusetts becomes the first state to establish a minimum wage. -1912
 The House of Representatives approves the Taft-Hartley Act. The legislation allows the president of the United States to intervene in labor disputes. President Truman vetoed the law but was overridden by Congress. -1947

Tuesday, June 5:

Butte Montana: The Metal Mine Workers Union formed to protest the draft for World War I and the rustling card system. Throughout history the Butte Union members proved time and time again to be leaders in enlightenment and in progress for the working class. -1917

A strike begins at a General Motors Corp. parts factory in Flint, Mich., that spreads and ultimately forces the closure of GM plants across the country for 7 weeks. The Flint workers were protesting the removal of key dies from their plant and feared their jobs would be lost. The company ended the dispute by assuring the plant would remain open until at least the year 2000. -1998

San Francisco's famed cable cars were halted for a 4th straight day and the rest of the city's transit system experienced delays after Union drivers called in sick days after overwhelmingly rejecting a new labor contract that would have resulted in pay cuts. The city attorney filed a charge of unfair labor practices against the Union. -2014

The Butte-Silver Bow Archives is hosting two presentations on a selection of photographs from the C. Owen Smithers Photograph Collection called "The Changing Face of Butte." The presentation will feature images from the Smithers collection that illustrate how Butte's buildings and landscape have changed through the years from an early mining town to a bustling metropolis and the loss of neighborhoods and buildings. mostly by fire, in the 1970s. The presentation will run Wednesday, May 30, from 5:30 to 6:30 p.m., and again on a Thursday, May 31, from noon to 1:00. For further information, contact the Archives at 406-782-3280.

Butte's Alley Rally will be at Cinders Park, Old Glory and Missoula Gulch June 1 and 2. Each location will be staffed by Butte-Silver Bow employee(s) to assist in placing items in the garbage containers.

The City-County of Butte-Silver will also be offering large garbage containers to neighborhood cleanup efforts available by contacting John Moodry from the Community Enrichment Department at (406) 497-6525. The City-County of Butte-Silver Bow would also like to remind the public that the landfill will be open 7 days a week from 8:00 am to 5:30 pm at the main site and 5:30 pm to 8:00 pm at the afterhours site. These hours will stay in effect until the end of October. As always, we remind the public that all loads going to the landfill are required to be covered.

Gardening series: The Butte Public Library is holding a gardening series on the fourth Thursday of each month from 6-7:30 p.m. at the Main Branch. For more information about this program or the Butte Seed Library (housed in the library) or how to reserve a plot at the Park Street Community Garden (managed through the library), please visit our website or call 406-723-3361.

Butte-Silver Bow's Folf Course location has changed. Starting April 5th the folf course at the Highland View Golf Course will close and will moved to Copper Mountain Park. For more information regarding either Highland View Golf Course or the folf course please contact Mark Fisher at mfisher@bsb.mt.gov

First Fridays, new informational noontime series on the first Friday each month in the Big Butte room on the third floor of the Butte Public Library. In the tradition of the Westside Shakespeare Club (a Chautauqua here in Butte), First Fridays is dedicated to exploring our world, our history, and literary works. If you would like more information about this program, please contact Shari Curtis at 406-723-

The Butte Public Library's Loosely Knit Club meets every Tuesday from 1-3 at the Library to knit, crochet, or craft together in a welcoming and supportive environment. For information, please call 723-3361 or visit buttepubliclibrary.info

The Butte-Silver Bow Public Library sponsors the Butte Chess club Wednesdays from 5:00-7:30 p.m. and Fridays 2:00-4:45 p.m. at the uptown branch. All abilities and ages are welcome. Come improve your game. No experience necessary. If you would like more information about this program, please contact Shari Curtis at 406-723-3361 ex. 6302 or email at scurtis@buttepubliclibrary.info.

May 30th will be the last Bingo at the Elks lodge for the season until September.

Allergy Season

'Tis the season to sneeze, complain about sinus headaches, get itchy eyes, or say you can't mow the lawn because you're allergic. While Spring has traditionally been the season of "hay fever," many people suffer all year round with what we all call "allergies." Whether it's a sensitivity to dust, animal hair, a certain food, or heavy-duty perfume, millions of humans around the world deal with health problems brought on by a fight-or-flight reaction to a substance that their bodies don't like.

Years ago, during the summer on the East coast, I could not breathe. My nasal cavity felt like it was filled with concrete. In addition, it was a very stressful time, so my adrenal glands were already working overtime pumping out adrenalin. (The adrenals are involved in the allergy response). Heeding pressure from my peers to see a physician, I made an appointment with an "allergist" only to meet a man who smoked cigarettes!! Granted, this was in the 1980s, but even I knew he was a medical contradiction, and so could I trust his advice? When he prescribed steroids, I knew I wasn't going to fill the prescription. My adrenal glands were already pumping out too much cortisol; how could this drug help my traumatized body?

These days, many allergy sufferers resort to heavy drugs, because the relief can be immediate. However, like many pharmaceuticals, side effects are possible, and long term use can have larger repercussions over time.

More than 50 million Americans deal with seasonal allergies, and most want a remedy that doesn't make you catatonic or leave your mouth desert dry. When hit with nasal congestion, headache, watery eyes, sneezing or wheezing, there is more you can do than just suffer or take medications with side effects. Natural relief exists, and it's effective.

Homeopathic remedies, herbs, vitamins and minerals all provide alternatives to allergy drugs. While there is no "one-remedy-fits-all" cure, over-the-counter natural remedies are reliable when product directions are followed.

Homeopathy is a safe and effective form of natural medicine that stimulates the body's own natural ability to heal. Delivering a micro-dose of an offending substance, such as an allergen, homeopathic remedies encourage the body to react in a healing mode. Unlike allergy shots, which often cause discomfort, homeopathy provides gentle relief, while building resistance without shocking the body.

Many homeopathic remedies treat symptoms such as itchy and runny nose and eyes, sinus congestion and pain, and skin irritation. Others help the body desensitize to a specific allergen, like tree and grass pollen, animal dander, dust or mold. These remedies come in convenient liquid or sublingual pill form, which dissolve immediately under the tongue. Homeopathic eye drops for allergic eyes are a soothing relief, as are nasal sprays that help clear sinus passages and prevent infection.

The most effective vitamin therapy is Vitamin C, including the flavonoids, especially quercitin. These work by inhibiting the release of histamines, the biochemicals that create the allergic effect. These histamines are just doing their job protecting the body from "enemies", but calming their production is the key to allergy control. Vitamin C also breaks down the histamine if it has already been released in the body, so an allergy attack will be less severe. It has been proven that subjects with low Vitamin C levels tend to have high levels of histamines in their blood, leading to allergy problems. Vitamin C is best taken for long periods of time as a preventative, so if you know you have hay fever, for example, start taking higher doses of C mid-winter.

Quercitin has a cellular structure that resembles the drugs that help or restrict histamine release. Combined with Vitamin C, quercitin is a natural and effective allergy remedy.

Also combined with 1,000 mg of Vitamin C, the nontoxic, nonmetallic sulfur compound MSM boosts the immune system and combats inflammation. It has been documented that the anti-allergy properties of MSM are equal to or better than chemical anti-histamines, without the side effects.

Finally, herbs such as stinging nettle, a natural anti-histamine, local bee pollen (although rumor has it this is questionable), white willow bark, eyebright and golden-seal all help relieve allergy symptoms. The only caution with certain herbs is a possible allergic reaction: make sure none of them are in the family of plants to which you are allergic.

If you a seasonal allergy person, or allergic all year, and allergy drugs are dulling your life, breathe easy with natural allergy remedies.
